IDEAS:

- You can use the idea illustrated above to introduce a discussion on understanding any issue...i.e., what does it take to understand this? What does it take to understand God's Word about it? What does it take to understand how God's Word on this issue applies to my life?
- You could also put up for your students the key verse written according to this misspelled pattern, where the first and last letters are correct but everything else in the middle is jumbled up.
- And, finally, you could also use this to illustrate how to see God in the middle of a jumbled mess in life.
- There are many other great and fun illustrations that this concept can help you make, whether in a newsletter or in front of your small or large group, so be creative, let God lead you and have fun.
