Guide Me

Choose one volunteer to blindfold. Tell him that you are going to give him instructions to guide around the room. Instruct him to take three steps forward, turn in a circle, do three jumping jacks, take two steps to your right, reach out and pat someone on the head, follow my voice, etc., lead him to a circle taped on the floor. Have him reach out and take a piece of candy from your hand. He made it to where you wanted them to go, because he followed your directions.

Spiritual Application: God's commands are like street signs that God gives us to help guide us to go the right way and to avoid the wrong direction. When you go the wrong way, you always end up in the wrong place. But God has special plans for each of you and that's why He tells us how to live life right.

Additional Option: Choose two volunteers, one boy and one girl. Send one out while the other follows your instructions. See who can follow the instructions the best but be sure to give them both the exact same instructions. Girls will almost always follow verbal instructions better, especially if you give them the opportunity to ask questions: two-way communication.
