

Stick and Stones

Stick and stones,
May break my bones,
But words will never...
What's that you say?

I'm as dumb as dirt,
And a nerd to boot,
And a clumsy ol' fellow,
That acts like a fruit.

My nose is so big,
That I look like a clown,
And by turning my head,
I might knock you down.

You think I dress uncool,
My breath has a odor,
And I talk so much,
'Cause my mouth has a motor.

My teeth look green,
My shoes really stink,
My lips are too large,
Is that what you think?

Ouch! That really hurts me.
Rocks and sticks,
May break my bones,
But words can hurt,
Even more than stones.

Watch Your Words

The old saying, "Sticks and stones may break my bones but words will never hurt me," is just not true. Words are very powerful and can hurt people very badly. So always be careful and use your words for good, not for bad.

The Bible says in Colossians 4:6,
"Let your conversation be always full of grace, seasoned with salt, so that you may know how to answer everyone."
